I want to express my keen interest in a role that involves leading creative projects and fostering team collaboration, leveraging my extensive 24-year career in the computer games industry. With a proven track record of evolving from a graphic designer to a seasoned producer and team leader, I am confident my unique blend of artistic insight and project management expertise would be a significant asset to your company.

My journey in game development began in 2001 as a graphic designer, quickly progressing to leadership roles where I oversaw technological and artistic development, managed backlogs, and forecasted project asset demands. For nine years, I led a graphics team, streamlining workflows with Kanban and assessing technological risks, preparing teams for evolving project requirements. My later work involved complex projects utilizing Scrum/Nexus frameworks, demanding close collaboration with programmers, technology architects, team leaders, freelancers, and marketing departments.

In recent years, I've had the privilege of leading diverse, full-stack development teams composed of developers, artists, and QA specialists across multiple simultaneous projects. This experience also involved direct client communication, ensuring transparent progress and proactive problem-solving.

I am eager to contribute to creative projects with clear objectives, where teams are empowered to tackle challenges and innovate. I am seeking an opportunity that not only allows me to apply my broad skill set but also supports my continuous professional and personal development.

Thank you for considering my application. I am enthusiastic about the possibility of discussing my experience in more detail and how I can contribute to your team's success. I am available for an interview whenever you get a chance.

Sincerely
Rafał Zerych
